If you've been reading for a while you know that my holiday gift guides for kids tend to showcase high quality toys that stand the test of time. I choose toys that make your kids think, interact, manipulate, move, and imagine. I tend to stay away from batteries if possible (because let's be honest, who has time for those tiny screws), and I do my best to recommend the not-so-obvious gifts (think Legos, Barbies, baseball gloves) because you already know your kids will love them!
